Trio of Juvenile Sneak Thieves Caught by | Nine Prisoners in Jail Charged as Principals

the Police. Three juvenile sneak thieves were caught esterday through the efforts of Policeman Connors and locked up on a charge of petit arceny. The names of the trio were given s Henry Barber, aged fifteen; Samuel stephenson, aged fifteen, schoolboys, and eorge Sims, aged eighteen, a laborer. They re accused of the larceny of goods amount-ng to about $5 from Adolph Lichenstein, the proprietor of a dry goods store on M The thefts were detected by Policeman onnors. He noticed the suspicious actions of the three, who came over to Georgetown from Washington, and watched them for a short time. Satisfied that something was wrong, he started after one of them. The whole three ran, but one was caught, and on him was found a new handkerchief. Along the path he had taken were found a bundle of handkerchiefs and several gloves. These were identified as coming from the store of Mr. Lichenstein. It was charged later that the boys had visited several other stores and committed minor thefts, a pair of trousers being stolen from Joseph Sommers. From the boy arrested the names of his companions were ascertained, and last evening the other two were arrested in Washington by the police of the third Improvements on 37th Street. The work of improving 37th street from the New Cut road to a point where Y street will eventua'ly be located has been given out by the District Commissioners. A few days ago proposals for the work were advertised, and the bid of F. W. Huidekoper, being the lowest, was accepted. Mr. Huidekoper has agreed to furnish cobblestones for the gutters and lay macadam roadway for the sum of $600. The completion of the improvemen will furnish a new driveway north of Georgetown.

General Mention. Owing, it 's claimed, to the persistent efforts of the residents of 32d street for the improvement of that thoroughfare, the District Commissioners have issued an order for the relaying of the curb on 32d street from U street northward to 34th street. According to the police report, nearly all of the electric lights in the West End were over an hour late last evening in performing their functions. Equivocal. From the Yonkers Statesman. Mrs. Styles-"Didn't I see you at the bargain counter at Gridley's yesterday?" Mrs. Myles-"Yes; I was looking for semething real cheap; I didn't see you, though."

Benjamin H. Snell, for the killing of Lizzie Welsenberger only a short time ago, and Frank W. Funk, for the murder of William H. These cases attracted more than usual attention and excited great indignation in the community. more than usual attention and excited great indignation in the community. Snell was arrested the day he killed the little girl, and an indictment soon followed. It was the intention of District Attorney Davis before he retired to try the case early this month, but for some reason it has been postponed, and it is not yet announced when Gerl. Anderson, the present district attorney; will have the case called.

Frank Funk, in whose case robbery was added to murder, is anxious for a trial and the police are also anxious to have the wooster Johnson, colored, charged with the murder of Emanuel Dodson, is another of those awaiting trial. Isaac Tyson and William Mills are in jail as alleged ac-

CAUSE OF BOER WAR

As Seen by the Colonial Secretary, Joseph Chamberlain.

ENGLAND MUST REMAIN SUZERAIN

This the Dutch Have Fully Determined to Resist.

SPEECH IN PARLIAMENT

In the British house of commons yesterday Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, delivered a speech in defense of his course in South Africa.

Mr. Chamberlain was loudly cheered on rising. He began with criticising severely the action of the opposition at the previous meeting of parliament. Their statements he said, were calculated to encourage President Kruger's resistance and embarrass the government in "most difficult and critical

Referring to Mr. Stanhope's demand for the production of his (Mr. Chamberlain's) letter to Mr. Hawkesley, he sald he would gladly produce this if Sir William Vernon-Harcourt and Mr. John Morley, who were members of the South African committee, requested it. Mr. Stanhope's criticism he characterized as "neither honest nor hon-

The speaker intervened, saying that the language of the colonial secretary was "be-yond parliamentary bounds." Mr. Cham-berlain retorted that it was impossible ad-equately to describe Mr. Stanhope's accu-sation that he (Mr. Chamberlain) and Sir Alfred Milner had fomented war.

Withdraws Strong Language.

"The government welcomed all honest and conorable criticism of their policy," said Mr. Chamberlain, "and I wish I could apply these epithets to the speech of the member for Burnley."

Mr. Stanhope, leaping to his feet, cried:

"I rise to order. I thought fit yesterday to arraign the conduct of the secretary of the state for the colonies. He speaks of my criticism as dishonorable and dishonest. Can such terms be applied to members of this house? (Opposition cheers.)

The speaker—"I thing the language of the secretary of state for the colonies is going somewhat beyond—"(The rest of his words being drowned in wild Irish cheers and shouts of "Withdraw").

Mr. Chamberlain calmly waited until the uproar had subsided, and then said:

"I bow with all respect, Mr. Speaker, to your decision. I withdraw everything I have said." Mr. Stanhope, leaping to his feet, cried:

have said." have said."

Then, amid frequent ironical cheers of the Irish members, he denounced the "campaign of slander," based upon his refusal to accept Mr. Stanhope's challenge to produce the letter he wrote Hawkesiey, saying that if Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman or Sir William Vernon-Harcourt desired to see the letter, he would produce it with the great letter, he would produce it with the greatest pleasure, as they were honorable members and honorable men. (Cries of "Order" and "Withdraw.")

Mr. Stanhope again leaped to his feet and called upon the speaker to intervene. The speaker rejoined that he did not think what the colonial secretary had said im-puted dishonorable conduct to the member for Burnley.

Question of Race Hatred.

Mr. Chamberlain discussed the question of acial animosity, denying that this feeling which, he said, was based in South Africa on contempt, would be increased by hostili He declared that racial animosity had not been created by anything the pres-and not been created by anything the present government had done, but that it existed before her majesty's present advisers assumed responsibility.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman interposed with the remark:

"I wish to point out that the feeling of animosity will be increased a hundredfold when the Dutch and English are slaughtering each other." (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. Chamberlain retorted:

"I say again that the racial animosity.

say again that the racial as thich has been the curse of South Africa based on contempt. Hate is bad enough but I would rather have a man's hate that his contempt. There will never be an end but I would rather have his contempt. There will never be an end of racial animosity, nor will there ever be peace in South Africa, until both races have learned to respect each other."

Denies Association With Rhodes.

With regard to the allegations respecting his own association with Mr. Cecil Rhodes he declared that from the time of the Jameson raid he had had no communica tion, direct or indirect, with Mr. Rhode on any subject connected with South Afri can policy. He had seen that gentleman with reference to the Cape-to-Cairo railway project, and also regarding Rhodesia, but the conversations had never touched upon the subjects now under discussion. He would remind the house that Mr. Rhodes, although a millionaire, had gone to fac-danger at Kimberley. (Cheers.) danger at Kimberley. (Cheers.)

Passing to the general question of the government's South African policy, Mr. Chamberlain said that in the light of recent events and the utterances of President Kruger, he had come to the conclusion that war had always been inevitable, although it was only of late that he had most reluctantly reached this view. He had hoped for peace and striven to maintain it, and up to a recent date he had believed that peace was possible.

He had always been determined to secure justice for the Britishers in South Africa justice for the Britishers in South Africa and maintain the paramountcy of Great Britain, but, with these things assured, he the colonial secretary said: "If we maintain our existence as a great power in South Africa we are bound to show that we are willing and able to protect British subjects wherever they have suffered injustice and oppression. Great Britain must remain the paramount power in South Africa. I do not mean paramount in the German and Portuguese possessions, but in the two republics and the British colonies. Every one on both sides of the house is determined to maintain these great principles.

"The peace of South Africa depends upon Great Britain accepting responsibility in the Transvaal. The Boer oligarchy has placed British subjects in a position of in-feriority, and what would have been the British position if they had submitted to that inferiority?"

Mr. Chamberlain continued: "There is one subject not dealt with in the blue books. I mean the disgraceful Boer treatment of the natives, unworthy of a civilized power. In 1896 I actually sent a message to Sir Hercules Robinson for the Transvaal respecting the treatment of natives. Then came the Lameson raid and tives. Then came the Jameson raid, and our South African officials decided that they could with propriety present the mes-sage. The Boers, in their own words, trekked, because they wanted to 'wallop the niggers."

Mr. John Dillon cried, "That is not true!" This was followed by loud demands for order, and the speaker called upon Mr. Dil-lon to withdraw the remark. The latter responded:
"I have not impeached the veracity of the colonial secretary."

The speaker—"I hope such expressions will not reoccur." (Cheers.) Boers' Object Bluntly Stated. Concerning the question of supremacy,

Mr. Chamberlain said: "The whole object of the Boers has been to oust the queen from her position as suzerain. Now they have thrown off the mask and declared themselves a sovereign. independent state.

"Her majesty's government have had a suspicion, amounting to knowledge, that the mission of Dr. Leyds is one continual series of negotiations with foreign powers against the British. (Loud cheers.) "The Transvaal and the Free State have an ideal which is dangerous to Great Britain, and, by the continuous accretions of arms, the Transvaal has become by far the most powerful military state in Africa. That was a danger, and we have escaped That was a danger, and we have escaped one of the greatest dangers we were ever subjected to in Africa. COR. 7TH AND E

Chamberlain denied that the question of Chamberiain defined that the question of suzerainty had necessarily irritated the Transvaal government or seriously affected the negotiations. As for the franchise for the outlanders, he declared that the government had never shifted their ground, and that every point sdvanced at the Bloemfontein conference by Sir Alfred Mil-ner had remained on the paper until the ultimatum. He added:

"I am much more afraid of the charge of being too moderate than of the charge of being excessive. The government's reply to the Transvaal accepted the five-year franchise proposal, except in respect of the pledge that Great Britain would never reinterfere in the Transvaal's internal affairs, but they hoped that, it the five-year franchise measure were carried into effect, there would be no occasion for interference.

Believes Transvaal Was Influenced.

I believe that influential advisers—I de not mean foreign powers-must have intervened and induced the Transvaal government to withdraw their offer. "As for the last proposals formulated by "As for the last proposals formulated by the British government, I may say that the desire of the right honorable member for West Monmouthshire (Sir William Vernon-Harcourt) that they be published will never be gratified. That ultimatum is buried and s not likely to be 'resurrected.' (Laughter).
"I challenge any one to see a sign of provocation, blood guiltiness or desire of war in the negotiations. The government increased the garrisons for defense on pres-sure from the Natal administration, to whom gratitude and thanks are due. Never before have the administration and colony of Natal so completely identified selves with the mother country. They knew they would be the first to bear the brunt of attack, yet they threw in their lot. heart and soul, with the mother country. "Her majesty's present advisers claim duite as earnestly as any previous government could have claimed, to be anxious for the honor and interests of the country. That is why they have supported the principle of protection for British subjects. That is why they uphold and confirm the suzerainty of England.

"Our countrymen have seen a magnificent demonstration, not only of loyalty, but of sympathy with the objects of the govern-ment on the part of the colonies. I have been as anxious for peace as any man, but the government hold that there are consid-erations which are even more important than peace, and one of these is the maintenance of equality between the white races South Africa.

"In their endeavor to maintain peace the government have shown endless patience. It was President Kruger who settled the issue. He appealed to the God of battles. If I may do so with reverence, I say, we ccept that appeal, believing our quarrel Mr. Chamberlain, who had spoken two and three-quarter hours, resumed his seat amid prolonged cheering. MR. HANNA DEFENDS THE TRUSTS. Points Out Where They Have Proved

Beneficial. Senator Hanna, in a speech before the fifth district republican club, in Cleveland, last night, defined his position regarding the trusts. On this subject he said:

"The democrats say I am afraid to talk about the trusts. That settles it. I'm going to talk about them. This combination of capital for one purpose or another is not a political question at all. It is a business question, and ought not to have been brought into politics. When our industries were in their infancy England and other countries came along and sold goods in this country at less than the price asked in their own.

"Then followed the protective tariff law formulated by that friend of the workingman, William McKinley. Having secured this protection, American manufacturers went abroad. They are making rapid went abroad. They are making taplit strides, and are successfully competing with the whole world. It is evident, however, that they cannot continue to do so unless they have combined capital. We ought to own and control our own merchant vessels. We then would be in shape to make our own tates and compete with other nations on an equal footing.

ing. The last year was the first year in the history of the country that this was true. But we must look to the future. We must stand prepared for the changes that are bound to come. This formation of combines is simply an evolution in business methods. Should railways own their own steamship lines there would be a marked change in the rates. All this requires capital, and such a tremendous amount that no ordinary corporation could stand it.

"The so-called trusts are not few. They

"The so-called trusts are not few. They have been found in England and Germany as far back as two hundred years, and are increasing. Therefore, from a business point of view, the formation of these combinations, in one sense, is one step forward. The democrats would have you believe that they are terrible anacondas that will swal. increasing. Therefore, from a business point of view, the formation of these combinations, in one sense, is one step forward. The democrats would have you believe that they are terrible anacondas, that will swallow us all up. However, if the trusts are a manage to the country, what party better than the republican party can give you retherefore, it is a penny for you," said the old gentleman kindly. "Go and buy yourself a glass of lemonade. You mustn't eat that stuff; it may make you bad."

"I wasn't goin 't' eat it," replied the urchin, seizing the coin.

"Indeed!" exclaimed the philanthropist in surprise. "What did you want with it, then?"
